

JASON GANNON
Managing Director
SoFi Stadium and Hollywood Park

Jason Gannon is the managing director of SoFi Stadium and Hollywood Park. In this role, Gannon has primary oversight over Hollywood Park and its operational components, which includes SoFi Stadium, the performance venue, retail, office, hotel and parkland that form the 298-acre district being developed in Inglewood, CA, by E. Stanley Kroenke.

SoFi Stadium and Hollywood Park are transforming the site of the former Hollywood Park Racetrack to a year-round sports and entertainment destination for the enjoyment of people throughout Southern California as well as visitors to the region. This will be the new must-see entertainment destination and gathering spot in the center of the Los Angeles basin. This monumental project is located two miles off the I-405, one-and-a-half miles off the I-105, and four miles from Los Angeles International Airport. The centerpiece of the district is a 70,000-seat stadium that will be the home of NFL's Los Angeles Chargers and Los Angeles Rams. The stadium will feature sporting events, including the Super Bowl LVI in 2022, the College Football National Championship game in 2023, and the Opening and Closing Ceremonies of the 2028 Olympic Games, as well as major concerts and other entertainment year-round.

As managing director of SoFi Stadium and Hollywood Park, Gannon is leading a world-class team that includes Turner, AECOM Hunt, Wilson Meany and Legends. He is responsible for all business matters regarding the project, including business development, marketing, sales, communications, government affairs, finance and legal. He also oversees all the contractors, including the thousands of workers, that are building this transformative stadium and district.

Gannon has been with the Kroenke Organization for more than 12 years. During this time, he has served in executive, project management, and legal capacities for various platforms and projects.
