

Christine Cooper, Ph.D.
Regional Economist
CoStar Group

Christine Cooper, Ph.D. is Regional Economist at CoStar Group, providing insights and analysis of national and regional macroeconomic conditions. CoStar is the leading provider of commercial real estate information, analytics and online marketplaces, conducting ongoing research to produce and maintain the largest and most comprehensive database of commercial real estate information.

Previously, she led the Institute for Applied Economics at the Los Angeles County Economic Development Corporation, performing forecasts, industry and workforce analysis, and policy studies across regional issues, producing numerous studies, reports and presentations for government agencies, nonprofit associations, industry leaders and legislative bodies. A frequent speaker and often quoted in the media, she has also taught at California State University, Long Beach and at the Pepperdine Graziadio School of Business and Management.

Earlier in her career, Dr. Cooper was co-founder of a start-up in Hong Kong focused on automating equity transactions and manufacturing computer accessories, ultimately expanding production into China and distributing products globally. She was co-founder of the first authorized Apple Computer retailer in China.

Dr. Cooper holds a Ph.D. in Economics from the University of Southern California with research emphasis in economic development and institutional economics.